

19TH NOVEMBER 2017 WILDFLOWERS AT CONGLOMERATE GULLY, RIDDELLS CREEK

The Weedies (Roadside Management Group) are pleased to organise a visit to a hidden gem in the Macedon Ranges in November.

Conglomerate Gully is one of the best dry eucalypt wildflower forest walks north west of Melbourne. Climbing into the hill country, the walk takes you through a forest with native grassland understorey, along a stream that includes waterfalls after rain. In spring it is one of the best places in the area to see native orchids.

The absence of motor bikes and 4wd vehicles makes it a peaceful escape to nature, unlike walks in similar forests nearby such as Wombat State Park. The walk is 2.9km and takes about an hour. Hilly, steep and rocky in parts. Wear Sturdy footwear. Cuppa & Cake after.
